Where in the World?

LUX Print Collection | Sept 12-Jan 7

The exhibition, Where in the World? is a guessing game for the viewer. Can you find all the places portrayed in the prints on a map provided in the gallery? How knowledgeable are you of world geography? While Gladys Lux loved Nebraska prairies, she also enjoyed traveling and seeing the world, which is one reason for the diversity of locations in her collection of prints. The prints in the exhibition will let you visit far away and nearby locations, while stirring your appreciation for the variety of artistic styles employed by the artists and their adept artistic execution.

Coming January 2019 — FiberFest is an exciting opportunity to connect the Lincoln community to the work of contemporary fiber and textile artists and to learn more about the amazingly versatile mediums these artists employ. The featured exhibitions bring local, national, and international artists to Lincoln, Nebraska. Participating artists will engage with the community in the form of workshops, lectures, and demonstrations, some of which are free of charge. This celebration of fiber arts is a communal endeavor in which we hope the Lincoln community will fully participate. The following organizations have partnered together to make this event happen: LUX Center for the Arts, International Quilt Museum, Hillestad Gallery with the University of Nebraska, Museum of Nebraska Art, Nebraska Wesleyan University, Joyo Theater, Brown Sheep Yarn Company, Constellation Studios, and Nebraska Innovation Studio.
